Given by the Ladies' Aid Society of Methodist Church Before Large

In spite of the rain on Friday even in spite of the raim on Friday even-ing a crowded house in the Methodist Episcopal Sunday school room greeted Ye Singing School of Ye Olden Time, as set forthe by ye Ladies' Aid society. Most of the costumes worn were a hundred years old, and several articles of apparel dated back to revolutionary times. The part of the Squire was admirably taken by Prof. J. Herbert George, in colonial costume. Mr. George led the large chorus in such magnificent numbers as Strike the Cymbal, Sound the Timbrel, and sang two numbers himself in rich, strong, meliow voice. The part of the dame in charge of Te Singing School was taken by Miss Mary E. Bidwell in her inimitable manner. She was clad in an old silk and kerchlef and wore an old silk and kerchief and wore corkscrew curls.

Among others who did especially well were E. M. Newbury in a solo, characteristic of over a century ago; Albert A. Guile, as the funny man; David H. Purvis, as the deliberate member. These three gentlemen all wore ful colonial costumes. Mrs. Henry R. Woodward was the deliberate girl, and Mrs. Eugene D. Boyens sang the solo of Cousin Jedediah with fine effect, The naughty pupil was taken by Mrs. George E. Robinson, who gave a fine rendering of My Grandma's Advice. The singing pupil who could not carry a tune was Frank E. R. Leete, who did admirably. The young lady who could not carry a tune was Mrs. William R. Dennison, and she carried out the idea in a very cute manner.

Some who rendered special help in the choruses were: E. W. Burr, Mrs. John C. Morgan, Mrs. John A. Ferguson, Mrs. Francis Bidwell and Miss Viva Mae Himes.

A charming little Scotch ballad was prettily sung by Mrs. Franklin Rumford. The squire's colored servant was excellently represented by Miss Elizabeth Lane, with her violin. The young lady who sang her solos well was Miss Gussie Church. The cute determined member was Mrs. Stiles C. Chapman.
